These questions tell us something about how you respond in challenging situations. Please answer them using examples from your experiences in academic, social or working life1. Please tell us about experiences and people that have over time shaped your decision to consider a management career within Unilever and in your chosen function in particular. What efforts have you made to test out your choices?(300 word limit imposed) ***

It was a very hard choice, since I'm generally an indecisive person. At school, I only enjoyed Business and Psychology classes, so I decided to major in Business (since it would open more career options for me) and minor in Psychology. I chose Marketing because it is very interesting and also because I'm mainly a right-brained person, so the other concentrations were not even an option. I decided that I want to work in the FMCG field because it's all about products that I understand and can relate to, and because it's a dynamic and challenging field and I'm the type of person who gets bored easily so I would need something challenging to keep me going. As for why Unilever? I attended Career Day that was held at my university some time ago, and I met Lipton's brand manager, Hussien Kandil, and he spoke to me about Unilever and its work environment. He mentioned how at Unilever the employees all consider themselves as one family and work as a team, and he told me that I don't have to be perfect or the best to work there; they help the newly employed and put them on the right track, which was all the encouragement I needed to apply at Unilever.

2. Using an example of a time when you were in a new environment and had to achieve a task, please describe a) how you established and used a network of contacts, and b) how you set about influencing people, to help you achieve your task. (500 word limit imposed) *

At Schneider, my mentor would assign me tasks and I was supposed to magically know how to perform them. I did not want to pester her with questions, so I would start by trying to do them on my own, but if there is something that I absolutely cannot do, I would then ask another intern (under another mentor), if she doesn't know, I would ask the other employees in the department. And I would alternate between asking them so that I wouldn't bore any of them. If the question I have can only be answered by my mentor (who was not at her office most of the time), I would write it on a sticky note and leave it on her desk, and she would answer me when she is back and has the time. Once, they had a vacancy that needed to be filled urgently, and there wasn't anyone suitable in all the resumes I had, so I asked my friends and family if they know someone suitable and I did get them someone in the end. As for influencing people, generally, I ask nicely which is my gate to getting anything I want. At Schneider, I would help the other intern with her work when I have extra time on my hands which would make her feel obliged to help me in return. As for my mentor, I showed her that I was a hard worker and a responsible and independent person, so whenever I asked her anything, she would know that I was not slacking and deserved help. Also, since I'm good at baking, I baked her some cookies as a friendly gesture, which made her like me more.

3. Tell us about an occasion when you have taken the initiative to learn and develop yourself in significantly new ways. Why did you want to do this, what did you do

3. Tell us about an occasion when you have taken the initiative to learn and develop yourself in engineering now. What did you want to do and what did you do and what was the result? (300 word limit imposed) *

I cannot recall a specific occasion. However, I always try to seize opportunities which would help me develop myself. I would attend job shadowing events for different career fields - merely for the chance to get to know more about them. Also, I have undergone a few summer internships in different fields to explore different career options.

4. Tell us about a time when you saw the opportunity to really make a difference for the future of an activity, team or organization. What did you do, what obstacles did you overcome, and what happened as a result? (300 word limit imposed) *

I cannot recall anything specific; however, if I have any suggestions, I just say them.

5. Tell us about a time when you have had to analyse and understand a complex situation in order to make decisions and put a plan into action. What did you do and what was the outcome? (300 word limit imposed) *

I cannot recall a specific situation. Generally when I am faced with a complex situation, I start writing down everything related to that situation (people, events, ...) then I start writing everything I know about the items I wrote. I then look if I have any missing information and start looking for it, then I start brainstorming for solutions and I when I find that one option is appealing, I try to go into details on how to implement it and if it's not feasible, I go for another option and so on until I have one option that I am satisfied with. Then, I look for people who I trust their opinions and are knowledgeable about the topic and ask for their opinions before I make the final decision.
