2. Using an example of a time when you were in a new environment and had to achieve a task, please describe a) how you established and used a network of contacts, and b) how you set about influencing people, to help you achieve your task. (500 word limit imposed) *

In my life, and in my academic life, I have been a task-oriented person. This task orientation was challenged to a great extent when I returned to school. I established an entirely new network of contacts, within the University and outside the University in industry and associations. In establishing the contacts, I sought make the greatest use of the human resources available in conducting our studies and completing our projects. To that end, I learned about their interests, accomplishments, and skills, and then structured projects such that the strengths of the team members were maximized for the individual and group portions of the projects, and that the external contacts were available to assist my team in making the projects a success. This required a firm grasp of skills in working with people, including cooperating and coordinating with a group of people with diverse backgrounds, skills, and personalities, keeping everyone motivated to work towards the common goal, exercising leadership skills through active listening and drawing out the opinions and feedback of others, and assuring that the team functioned in an atmosphere of respect and consideration. I achieved the goals by modeling the behaviors I wanted from the group, but more than that, by discussing, individually and as a group, the importance of moving towards our common goals, the essential elements of teamwork.

3. Tell us about an occasion when you have taken the initiative to learn and develop yourself in significantly new ways. Why did you want to do this, what did you do and what was the result?(300 word limit imposed) *

I'm having difficulty at the beginning of it in the self-learning .. to reach a satisfactory result and then overcame this problem, intensive search for materials related to my study of the project .. and take advantage of previous experience of others

I took courses for more than my skills in programming languages .. I want to gain experience more than other programmers
